PRESENTING WITH CONFIDENCE

Communicating, presenting, influencing and building rapport are vital skills in today's business environment, and the need for it only increases as careers progress.

Presenting With Confidence is a three hour workshop, designed to help you effectively influence both clients and colleagues. You will learn more about your own existing communication style, gain command of your body language and emotions, find your authentic voice, sharpen your active listening skills, learn how to build rapport and establish trust with clients and present with natural confidence and presence. It is all about evolving your personal style by getting you up and out of your seat so you leave with lots of practical experience. More talk less chalk

"Elders recently asked Myles to run an intensive workshop session with some of our experienced WA managers. We wanted Myles to focus on their presenting styles, helping them build on their diverse strengths and confidence within their roles. Myles ensured that he was well prepared and had an understanding of our business, the culture and challenges our staff may face. From the beginning of the session, Myles captured the participants attention and it was an enthusiastic, engaging, interactive workshop. We were pleased to receive a lot of positive feedback from our staff. They unanimously agreed that it was a worthwhile experience and they now feel more confident and equipped with the tools to take their presentations to the next level. I can highly recommend Myles in what he offers to corporate business and look forward to working with him again in the future."

"Recently the IDEAS Principal Collegial group had Myles Pollard present a workshop titled 'Presenting with Confidence'. This workshop focused mainly on persuasive communication techniques. The practical workshop was very engaging from the minute Myles entered the room. The level of Principal experience in the room was high however every single participant felt they left with many more ideas, skills and techniques from the half day session. Myles was a fantastic facilitator of this workshop. He was well versed in the topic, well organised and his presentation had good flow. I would highly recommend his workshop to any corporate group seeking to improve their presentation techniques."

"In a few short hours, Myles Pollard's workshop gave me a boost of confidence and skills in how to discover, improve and make best possible use of the power of my own speech. Using his experience and training as an actor and orator, Myles led us through several techniques which I was able to put into immediate practice in a range of speaking situations and scenarios, both formal and informal, with great effect."
